

Payment Processing, Inc. Partners with AltaPoint to Provide Integrated Credit Card Processing for Medical Practices
CreditWare is Fully Integrated with Newest Release, AltaPoint Version 7.0

Newark, California, August 29, 2006 - Payment Processing, Incorporated (PPI), the industry leader in integrated transaction processing, today announced it is powering CreditWare, AltaPoint Data System's integrated credit card processing component to AltaPoint 7.0.

“With the increasing demand from medical offices for credit card processing, it was imperative to find a payment solution that would readily integrate with our latest version of AltaPoint,” says Randy Sherwood, COO of AltaPoint. “PPI provides a solution that offers seamless integration for credit card processing as well as superior support, a win-win for both AltaPoint and our customers.”

AltaPoint provides software support solutions for the electronic medical records and practice management industry. CreditWare is the company's automated credit card processing module that is fully integrated with AltaPoint Version 7.0, a multi-platform software program that combines billing, inventory, scheduling, reminders, clinical records, and many other features in one user-friendly system.

Through PPI and CreditWare, AltaPoint customers now have an all-inclusive payment processing system that features:

- End-to-end integrated credit card processing to handle transactions seamlessly and reliably
- Unlimited 24/7/365 free technical and administrative support for CreditWare transaction issues
- Fast and smooth configuration, testing and training to get customers up and running quickly
- Competitive pricing for merchant accounts

“The medical software industry represents a substantial growth opportunity for integrated payment processing,” says Anthony Gin, Director of Partnerships at PPI. “This partnership provides all medical specialists, including physicians, chiropractors, ophthalmologists and optometrists with a reliable, low-maintenance card payment solution.”
