Payment Processing, Inc. Partners with SouthWare Innovations, Inc. to Provide Integrated Credit Card Processing for the Business Application Market

Newark, California, June 20, 2006 - Payment Processing, Incorporated (PPI), the industry leader in integrated transaction processing, today announced a partnership with SouthWare Innovations, Inc., the provider of an integrated family of financial, management information and business improvement software tools. The partnership enables SouthWare customers to leverage a single resource for credit card processing – including processing support, installation and configuration– for both payment software and transaction issues.

“By partnering with PPI, we are able to provide our customers with a comprehensive solution,” said Rick Hulseley, Vice President, SouthWare Innovations. “PPI provides one resource for the entire payment process to make it easier to accept credit cards. This will save our customers significant time and money.”

Through PPI, SouthWare customers have a complete solution for integrated credit card processing such as:

- End-to-end integrated credit card processing to process transactions seamlessly and reliably
- Unlimited 24/7/365 free technical and administrative support for both software and transaction issues
- Configuration, testing and training to get customers up and running quickly and smoothly
- Competitive pricing for merchant accounts to save money on initial set-up

“PPI is dedicated to providing partners with merchant account services along with all the technology and support services needed to integrate, test and deploy a seamless payment solution,” said Tim Murray, director of strategic partnerships at PPI. “By partnering with SouthWare, we are able to provide their customers with a cutting-edge, integrated payment solution while reducing support costs.”
